Vision

The Southwest Indigenous Women's Coalition works to end violence against women and children by strengthening the leadership, community response, justice, and safety of indigenous women while restoring the essence of sisterhood and sacredness of being through education, training, technical assistance, and culturally sensitive supportive services.

“My grandmother used to say we are like an iceberg. We have to stick together. If we shatter and fall apart, we break into pieces and melt away. We have to stay connected because behind us are our children, our grandchildren, our tribes... our future. I want to see my grandchildren grow up understanding their rights as human beings, as indigenous people recognizing they have permanent rights to exist without violence and have the same protection as any human being.”

Training and Technical Assistance

TRAINING:

Training services include a wide range of topics relating to domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, sex trafficking and teen relationship violence.

Trainings vary in length from a minimum of 4 hours to 1-3 days depending on the level of need and are provided with the assistance of partners and/or experts who serve as faculty.

Trainings are interactive, culturally competent and based on best practices available. They are offered statewide, regionally or on-site and may involve a fee for expenses related to the time and travel of staff and faculty in developing and providing the training.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE:

Technical assistance (TA) services are tailored specifically to meet the needs of those requesting the service. TA sessions are provided with the assistance of partners and/or experts who serve as faculty.

TA sessions are held onsite from 1-2.5 days and are designed to be hands-on, practical and aimed at increasing the capacity to address and response to domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, sex trafficking and teen relationship violence (dating violence).

TA sessions may involve a fee for the time and travel expenses of staff and faculty to develop and conduct the TA session.
